2. [] has established an enviable record since joining the Agency as a GS-07 economic analyst in 1980. He has steadily improved his analytic skills through a variety of assignments ranging from working on international energy issues to Southeast Asian regional economic issues, and more recently combining economic and political analysis in examining the Australian and New Zealand economies. At the same time, Mr. [] has shown that he is serious about continuing post-graduate studies by pursuing after hours work in economics, which recently led to his receiving an MA from Georgetown University.
